KING COTTON

is on his throne again. Money is circulating freely.

The time to get money and the time to save is when money is in circulation. No use to get it unless you save it. No better way to save than to deposit regularly in the bank.

The experience of last fall proved the advantage of a bank account. Compare the condition of those who had a bank account and were able to hold their cotton with your own condition.

Begin now. Bring your deposits to the Bank of Pageland as hundreds of others have done already.

How to Win Happiness

(By Mrs. W. A. Simpson.)

Cultivate habit of always looking on the bright side of every thing.

Worry and anxiety are the great killers.

Worry has its effect on the physical powers, it breaks down the nerve centers, making one less able to do ones work or to meet any difficulty. "Don't cross the bridge before you come to it" meet every trouble as it arises.

We must accept cheerfully our place in life while we are in it, believing that it is the best possible place for us.

This does not mean that we should not strive to better our condition, but it means that while we are in one position, to make the very best of it we can, and not be fretful, and jealous of others. "Oh" we say, "if I just had something else, or were in some other situation, I could be happy." No we could not be. If we can not command happiness in our present position we could not find it in another. We must throw our whole soul and spirit into our work, and do it the best we can, or know how.

No matter what our work is, or what it may be, we must form a habit of doing it well or we can never be happy.

Get into the habit of doing bits of kindness and courtesies to all those who touch our life each day.

This means at home, principally. Any one can be polite and pleasant and thoughtful when out on a dress parade.

But the folks who love us most and whom we most love are those in our own household or our immediate surroundings. Try thoughtfulness, kindness, and courtesy, with them, and we will soon find that this will win more affections than many other acts that we can perform. To be happy we must have the continual joy of the friendly meetings of others, and the daily intercourse with our fellow beings. The evil deeds of our lives, have their effect upon the lives of others, so let us be very careful how we live and how we act, for in some measure we are our brothers keeper. So let us adopt and maintain a simple, christ-like attitude of confidence and trust in God as our father.
